"Computerfest Special!"
Where is that booth Amy told me about? I was wanting to sign up today!
AHA! THERE it is!
QUAKE!
ACH! CHEAP!
PROVIDER IN
I wanna get on the Internet with my Amiga!
They have serial ports?

"What's an Omega?"
Well, according to this, there ARE some "Amigas" connected to the net, so I guess we can sign you up as long as you can provide your own software.
SIGH
FINE.
OK, let's fill out these forms here.
What operating system do you use? Windows 3.1, 95, NT, OS/2, Mac OS, or UNIX?

I Just Finished up all the paperwork and set everything up with the provider.
Sounds ominous.
I'll be surfing the Internet in no time!
that's great.
All I have to do now is set up the software.
uh.
do you have any idea how I do that?
Not a clue.

Hello.
THOMAS! - about time you showed up.
hi hon.
What's going on in the other room there?
Sabrina bought Internet access at the Computerfest.
She's setting up the software now.
#@*@!!
Really.
Right now she's got some trouble with "Internet domain numbers".
whuzzat mean?
They sent her 20 different twelve-digit numbers. One's the right one, and she doesn't know which.
I'VE GOT IT NARROWED DOWN TO THESE EIGHT!!

"Hindsight is 20:60"

All righty! Two weeks of hard work, and AmiTCP is finally up and running!
All I gotta do now is..
Hey! Look it this!
Look it what?
Says here there's a new Internet stack for Amiga called Miami that's a lot easier to install and set up than AmiTCP.
according to this, It's almost totally automated and idiot proof.
Almost as if it were made for Mac users.
Thought you might be interested.
Sabrina?
AMAZING AMIGA
You've got a ten second head start.
Hey!

"Backstory, Part II"

As unusual as it sounds nowadays, Amy & Thomas had a "love at first sight" thing happening.
They had several wonderful dates, and except for a couple short fits of giggling, they were both incredibly happy.
Yup, it was love all right, and after the seventh date, Amy decided to take the next step,
and do something they had not yet done as a couple,
Woo!
-much to the surprise of a certain roommate
!?
OH GOD!! THOMAS! OHHHH!
